ABSTRACT

The primary objective was to fulfill the basic need of food for the residents of the elders' home. This was done by providing a wholesome and nourishing meal to them. We also aimed to provide emotional comfort to the elders living there, therefore cultivating respect, empathy and social responsibility among our members.

PROJECT NEED ASSESSMENT

Benefiting Community	The elderly residents of the Bona Vista Elders' Home.
Identified Community Need	In general, elderly people often feel a bit lonely or disconnected from the younger generation. While their day-to-day needs are met, they really value extra social interaction and the chance to share their life experiences with young people.
Service Opportunity	Providing a dinner as a gesture of honor and spending quality time with the elders to make them feel cared for, respected, and connected to the younger generation.
Mode of Data Collection	Observations and informal discussions with the staff at Bona Vista to find the best way to offer a special experience for the residents.

Project Description	"Youth to the Elderly" brought joy, comfort, and nourishment to the residents of Bona Vista Elders' Home. Our members acknowledged the emotional isolation faced by senior citizens and spent the evening providing companionship, culminating in a warm, nutritious dinner for all. The program aimed to make elderly individuals feel integral to the community, maintaining their dignity and well-being. While their physical needs are addressed, senior citizens often lack consistent emotional support and connection with the younger generation. There was a clear need to enrich the lives of these senior adults through conversation and care that breaks the monotony of their daily routine. On April 17, 2026, Centennial Leo Club members arrived at the Bona Vista Elders' Home. The execution was split into two phases. First, our members sat with the residents, engaged in conversations, listened to their life experiences, and shared stories. Then, Leos arranged the dinner served dinner to each resident, followed by dessert.
