● About the Project

1. Project Objective

The objective of Impact Ink was to support the development of the newly established library at the Galle Scout Headquarters by donating quality reading materials. Through this, the club aimed to encourage reading habits of young while contributing valuable literary resources to the library collection.

2. Project Description

➤ Community Need / Requirement:

The Galle Scout Headquarters had recently established a library to encourage scouts to engage in reading and educational activities. As the library was still in its early stages, there was a need to expand its collection of books in order to provide meaningful reading material for users.

Recognizing this need, the club identified an opportunity to contribute by donating books that could enrich the library's resources.

➤ Project Selection / Idea Generation:

The project was selected because promoting reading and access to knowledge is an important part of youth development. By contributing books to the newly opened library, the club could support a long term resource that will benefit for many years.

This project also allowed us to support another youth focused organization while encouraging literacy and learning within the youth.

➤ Planning and Execution:

The project planning began with discussions among club members regarding possible ways to contribute books to the newly established library at the Galle Scout Headquarters.

Following this, members worked to gather suitable books including short stories, novels, educational materials, and general reading books. The collected books were organized, mended and prepared for donation before being handed over to the Galle Scout Headquarters.

➤ Challenges Identified:

One of the main challenges was identifying books that would be suitable and beneficial for the diverse group of readers who use the library.

Another challenge was ensuring that the donated books were in good condition and appropriate for a public library setting.

➤ Solutions Implemented:

To address these challenges, the club carefully selected books that were relevant, educational, and suitable for a young audience.

Members verified that all donated books were in good condition and suitable for the library. Any damaged items were mended before being donated, ensuring only the quality books were donated.

➤ Contribution from Leo Club Members:

Club members actively participated in gathering and donating books for the project. Their contribution helped create a diverse collection of books that would benefit users of the newly established library.

The project also encouraged teamwork and collective effort among members, demonstrating the club's commitment to community service and youth development.

➤ Conclusion:

The Impact Ink project successfully supported the growth of the newly established library at the Galle Scout Headquarters through the donation of valuable reading materials.

This initiative reflects the our dedication to promoting education, literacy, and knowledge sharing within the young community. The donated books will continue to serve scouts using the newly opened library, contributing to their learning, creativity development and personal development.

Description

The Centennial Leo Club of Richmond College organized Project Impact Ink to help stock the newly established library at the Gaile Scout Headquarters. We focused on donating a carefully selected batch of books including quality novels. Our members handled the whole process, from gathering the books to sorting them and mending any damages, making sure only books in great condition made it to the shelves. Our goal was simply to give this new library a solid foundation and ensure the scouts had access to good reading material anytime they required.
