ABSTRACT

The Leo Say Thanks project was initiated to be an honest sign of thanking and appreciating people who had remained serving the community on Christmas Day despite the fact that other people would be enjoying their family moments. It was done jointly by the Southern Metro Leo Club and Richmond College Leo Club. The project was meant to appreciate and reward healthcare workers, road cleaners, police, and army workers among other service providers as a way of thanking them due to their efforts and sacrifices. It too taught the Leo members the virtues of teamwork, humbleness and leadership choosing service over celebration in which the actual Leo motto of Leadership, Experience and Opportunity.

PROJECT NEED ASSESSMENT

|---------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Benefiting Community      | The beneficiary community was the basic service workers like the health services personnel at Karapitiya Teaching Hospital, road cleaners, police, and army workers and other workers of the government as a whole who worked on Christmas Day yet other people were enjoying it.                                                                                                                                  |
| Identified Community Need | It had been found out that even during festive seasons, a number of those involved in the essential work do not get a break or even be recognized. These are people who are sometimes not known or appreciated to make sacrifices and offer their dedication. This was the case the Leo Club noticed in the previous years and it perceived the necessity of rewarding and encouraging these diligent individuals. |
| Service Opportunity       | This service opportunity was to share thanksgiving and appreciation through the planning of Leo Say thanks project. This event enabled the club members to give gifts and Christmas treats to the people who were on duty during the holiday. This was a chance to make people happy, lift their spirits, and demonstrate that their work is appreciated by society.                                               |
| Mode of Data Collection   | The information regarding the needs within the community was gathered using: Past experiences of the Christmas season. Conversations between the members of Leo Club regarding the nonstop work of service workers. Social awareness of those working during the holidays even in spite of the holidays.                                                                               |

| Project Objective      | The Leo Say Thanks project was initiated to be an honest sign of thanking and appreciating people who had remained serving the community on Christmas Day despite the fact that other people would be enjoying their family moments. It was done jointly by the Southern Metro Leo Club and Richmond College Leo Club. The project was meant to appreciate and reward healthcare workers, road cleaners, police, and army workers among other service providers as a way of thanking them due to their efforts and sacrifices. It too taught the Leo members the virtues of teamwork, humbleness and leadership choosing service over celebration in which the actual Leo motto of Leadership, Experience and Opportunity. |
| Project Description    | The Leo Says thanks project was held on 25 th December 2025 in the evening. One of the club members, who was dressed as Santa Claus, presented gifts to the community service workers in Galle and Karapitiya to make them happy and thankful. The team distributed toffees and small gifts to children and appreciation gifts to the health care workers, road cleaners and security guards. The work provided the organizers with a sense of Christmas and positive mood, and this was shared by people who had to work during the holidays. It was a significant occasion that helped to build on solidarity between the two Leo clubs and provided the real meaning of giving back to the society.                     |
